What are former interns saying?

At my internship at the Ohio State Fair this summer, I've had the opportunity to try my hand at a plethora of different and relevant tasks. I enhanced my skills working on more traditional public relations projects such as writing press releases, pitching stories to media and editing copy, while also getting the chance to get my feet wet in areas I've never ventured into before. These new areas included working in media relations, partaking in scriptwriting and editing for the Ohio State Fair's official podcast and planning promotional events leading up to the 12-day Fair. I had the chance to progress in my PR and marketing skills while working in a fun, encouraging and fast-paced environment with the best team imaginable!

This internship was an amazing opportunity; I learned more than I could have ever imagined in just three months. I always tell people the best thing about this experience was that I feel like I got two internships in one. How many students get to know the ins and outs of media relations while also completing more traditional PR tasks along the way? Not to mention, the other interns quickly became my go-to people in and out of the office.

- Kaylee, The Ohio State University (2019)

Working at the Ohio State Fair this summer has given me tons of "real world" experience. I've learned so much about working with media outlets to plan live broadcasts and organize ticket allocation, creating content that is distributed throughout the Fair and connecting the community to the Fair in an authentic, meaningful way. These experiences taught me so much about what it takes to successfully market and shape the public's perception of a huge tradition in Ohio. The media relations, public relations and marketing skills I have learned here are things I will take with me for the rest of my career.

- Hannah, Ohio University (2019)

Working for the Ohio State Fair has helped me grow in so many ways. This position is set-up to give individuals the experiences they need, while still helping to prepare everything it takes to host the Ohio State Fair. Working as a Marketing and Public Relations Coordinator for the Ohio State Fair is incomparable to any other internship opportunity you could find within the marketing and public relations industry. I'm so thankful for all the connections I've made and real-world experiences I walked with.
